The University of South Florida Sarasota-Manatee has achieved tremendous growth in academic achievement, research initiatives and enrollment over the past three decades-plus, providing undergraduate, graduate and certificate programs of merit to the region. In 2013, USFSM, the second regional institution in the USF System to be separately accredited, welcomed its first freshman class to a four-year institution that is large enough to lead, yet small enough to care. It offers the prestige of a nationally ranked research university with the convenience of a hometown campus that is responsive to community needs.

USFSM employs world-class faculty in its four colleges (College of Arts & Sciences, College of Business, College of Education and College of Hospitality and Technology Leadership), almost 90 percent of which hold terminal degrees in their fields. The institution serves over 1,877 part-time, full-time, online and in-person students annually, and has more than 18,000 alumni living and working in the region.
